OTR Studios, home base for 5-time Grammy nominated producer and engineer Cookie Marengo, continues to be a destination for artists seeking great sound combined with affordable rates. Under the guidance of Marengo, engineers are carefully trained to her standards with the musicians' creativity as the driving force behind any recording project. OTR has made a commitment to quality, service, and professionalism at reasonable rates.

The rebuilt 1885 Steinway, professional staff, vintage mic collection, high end preamps, 3 isolation rooms and proprietary silver cable are just a few reasons to come to OTR.

Located on the San Francisco peninsula, OTR is a 30 minute drive from both San Francisco and San Jose. The quiet, secluded hilltop location offers a sweeping view of the canyon and beyond. This unique environment allows the artist to perform at their creative best with no distractions. Affordable lodging is close by for international travelers wanting to use our facility.

About

Formerly an A&R rep for Windham Hill, Marengo combines the skills of a master engineer with industry savvy. Her work with Liquid Audio placed her in a position to be the first engineer to record a digital music file that became the first paid live recorded download. Blue Coast Records, the audiophile label founded by Marengo and Jean Claude Reynaud, now sets the standard for hifi acoustic music recording. Marengo became the first woman to sit among the 30 top engineers for the first surround grammy nominations a few years ago. As a writer for EQ magazine, she continues to offer educational and truthful insights to audio engineering.

At OTR we watched the growth of our bands in their early years to platinum success stories. We made long relationships with most of the manufacturers over the years becoming beta test studios and offering new products in the digital age. With workshops and marketing programs we often interface with festival promoters to keep our artists visible in the industry.

Currently, we have our proprietary silver cable through out the recording rooms providing the clarity of sound that an audiophile requires. We offer consultation for small home recording rooms, staff for setup and rentals for recording at home.
